

Blowing past the competition

Melissa Garcia, a fourth-grader at Stantonsburg Elementary, inches her car toward the finish line to win the championship last week in a "Science in the School Day" event sponsored by Cities United for Science Progress. Engineers from Dupont helped students design and build paper cars. The students then raced their vehicles across the floor by blowing on them. The activity concluded with a discussion of aerodynamics and other design factors that made the difference in the race. Story, page A-7. (NL Photo by Ponder)

Wayne-Wilson

News Leader

New teachers at Norwayne
...Page A-3

Commissioners urge state to study annexation issue... Page A-3

Stantonsburg trims
drainage project
... Page B-8